EX-SECRETARY OF SEN. BILBO ON THE STAND

Testifies There Was "Understanding" With Contractors To Pay Campaign Debt

MONEY WAS ADVANCED

BULLETIN
Washington, Dec. 18.—(P)—Edward P. Terry, former secretary to Senator Bilbo (D-Miss.), testified today that A. B. Friend told him last April that if he told what he knew about his former boss he would be killed. He said that Friend, a war contractor and Bilbo's campaign manager, delivered the warning to him while entertaining Terry and his wife at dinner in a Mississippi hotel. He quoted Friend as saying: "Ed, if you take any part in this campaign or tell what you know on Senator Bilbo you'll be killed." Terry, testifying at a senate war contracts investigation, said that later in the evening Mrs. Terry asked Friend if Bilbo was going to kill her husband.

Washington, Dec. 18.—(P)—Edward P. Terry, former secretary to Senator Bilbo (D-Miss.), testified today that there was an "understanding" with Mississippi war contractors in connection with a 1940 election campaign debt. Terry told senate war contract investigators that Bilbo told him that the debt would be paid by the contractors.

"Was there any understanding that these war contractors were to pay any money or that any money was to be paid?" asked Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.).

"Yes," Terry replied.

Under Ferguson's questioning, Terry said it had been his duty to provide campaign funds for the 1940 election of Senator Bilbo. To do this, Terry said he advanced "about $3,600 plus $750, or about $4,350."

Shortly afterward Terry said he received a long distance telephone call from Bilbo in which "Senator Bilbo told me the money would be repaid me by these contractors."

Terry said that A. B. Friend, one time campaign manager for Bilbo and later one of the war contractors, was present in his room when Bilbo telephoned.

The witness said he later received cash and checks to repay the debt.

At another time, while he and Bilbo were having breakfast in the same building where the hearing now is underway, Terry said Bilbo told him:

"Be calm, stay on the job and don't say anything to the boys until they get well on the way on the job."

Terry explained this referred to war contractors who were just starting work on projects that Bilbo had helped obtain for them.

"My understanding was that they, through some manipulation, would begin to pay me," Terry added.

An effort to bar Terry from testifying about his "confidential relationships" with his former employer, Bilbo, was made by Paul Dillon, St. Louis lawyer who appeared as Terry's counsel at the hearing.

Dillon argued that to permit a senator's secretary to disclose confidential matters learned in

Martin Urged To Resign And Enter Senate On January 3rd

Harrisburg, Dec. 18.—(P)—Governor Martin said today he still has to make up his mind whether he will resign as Pennsylvania's executive to take his seat in the U. S. senate on Jan. 3.

"When I do I'll make my own decision," the governor told reporters at a news conference in response to questions.

Martin's term as governor expires on Jan. 21. Should he resign before that date Lt. Gov. John C. Bell, Jr., would take over the reins of the state government until Governor-elect James H. Duff is inaugurated.

Washington, Dec. 18.—(P)—Influential Republican house members are urging Senator-elect Edward Martin to resign the Pennsylvania governorship and enter the senate January 3.

There's good reason:

If Martin is sworn in with the other new members there's a chance he can gain membership on the senate finance committee, which handles tax bills.

Stassen Rips Lid Off 1948 Republican Nomination Battle By Declaring His Candidacy

Washington, Dec. 18.—(P)—Harold E. Stassen ripped the lid off the 1948 Republican presidential nomination battle today by declaring his candidacy on an immediate platform of changing the Wagner labor relations act.

The 39-year-old three-time governor of Minnesota and former navy captain added that he is out to steer the GOP along a "truly liberal path."

One of his first efforts, Stassen told a news conference, will be directed toward amending the Wagner act to prescribe a "set of unfair practices" for labor, such as "mass picketing." Practices now spelled out as unfair in this law apply only to management.

Stassen said he wants to "balance up this collective bargaining."

His announcement, unexpected, only because of its timing so long before the 1948 nominating convention, came after Senators Vandenberg of Michigan and Taft of Ohio had told reporters they are not candidates. Each, however, left the way open for any campaigns in their behalf.

Stassen, as the first to throw his hat into the ring, served notice on the party's old guard that it can look for a battle somewhat similar to that waged in 1940 by the late Wendell L. Willkie. Many Willkie supporters now are in the Stassen camp.

Besides Taft and Vandenberg, others who have been mentioned as contenders for the nomination include Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the 1944 standard bearer; Senator-elect John W. Bricker of Ohio; Govs. Earl Warren of California and Edward Martin of Pennsylvania; Senator-elect Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut; and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Fraising the way President Truman handled the coal strike, Stassen said the future of the working people depends on four things in the next six months:

- 1—No big strikes so production can be kept continuously high.
- 2—Raising the salaries of white collar workers such as teachers to the "new level we have arrived at."
- 3—No extreme, restrictive legislation that would place power in the hands of the government in violation of labor's fundamental rights.
- 4—Consumer resistance to high prices.

State Capitol Tree Lighted By Governor

Harrisburg, Dec. 18.—(P)—Governor Martin, speaking at the lighting of a huge Christmas tree in the rotunda of the state capitol, said today the ceremony is a "symbol of the finest things in life."

Mrs. Edward Martin, wife of the governor, turned on the lights of the tree, erected in the center of the rotunda, as combined choral groups of high school students sang Christmas carols.

In addition to the governor and Mrs. Martin, others on an impromptu speakers' stand included Governor-elect and Mrs. James H. Duff, and members of the governor's cabinet.

"As we celebrate we must not forget that the everyday side of life has its part in this holiday season," the governor said.

"We would all be happier if we knew that people everywhere were clothed and sheltered and that there was no hunger and hardship anywhere in the world."

The governor asked state capitol workers and others who gathered before the tree not to forget "the work, the courage, the sacrifice and the love necessary in building this great state."

"With their Bibles and rifles and

NEW DEMANDS MAPPED FOR IRONWORKERS

Wage-Policy Committee of CIO in Pittsburgh To Formulate Industry Pay Scale

MAY SET FRAMEWORK

Pittsburgh, Dec. 18.—(P)—The wage-policy committee of the CIO-United Steelworkers which last year set the pattern for labor's wage program, meets today to formulate contract demands on the basis of steel industry.

The union's executive board met for six hours yesterday to set up the framework of the 1947 demands but made no specific wage increase recommendation.

Philip Murray, president of the 850,000 steelworkers, declined to make any statement at the conclusion of the conference and turned aside all queries pertaining to wages.

One question that appeared definitely decided is that there be no uniform demands for the entire steel industry. It is understood that Murray wants the increases negotiated on the ability of each firm to pay.

Last year the steelworkers demanded a blanket $2 a day increase, later settling for an 18 1/2 cent hourly raise.

The CIO chief has made himself clear that the Union does expect a wage increase and has said he is satisfied the steel industry can afford to grant one.

The executive board yesterday went into all phases of the proposed demands, the guaranteed annual wage, social insurance, union shop as against the present maintenance of membership, portal-to-portal pay and localized issues.

Meanwhile, James J. Matles, director of organization for the CIO-United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers, said the UMRW will not recommend a suggested wage increase figure until it opens negotiations with the electrical companies.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 18.—(P)—Gwylm A. Price, president of the Westinghouse Electric Corp., today rejected arguments he attributed to leaders of organized labor that total corporation profits can provide "higher individual company wages."

Prices in a year-end statement, said Westinghouse could have an operating loss of more than $50,000,000 for 1946 but that a carry-back provision of the wartime tax law had given the company a net income of $4,411,481 for the first 11 months of the year.

He declared it was "instructive" to balance Westinghouse's 1946 operating loss against the statements of those who charge American industry with making "stagflation" and "unconscionable" profits out of which increased wage scales could be paid.

No Objection To Tapping Of Pipelines

Harrisburg, Dec. 18.—(P)—Emergency tapping of the Big and Little Inch Pipelines to provide additional natural gas in the Pittsburgh area and alleviate a fuel shortage was authorized today by Governor Martin.

The executive wired Ward Perrott, president of Equitable Gas Company, of Pittsburgh, late yesterday Pennsylvania will raise no objections against taking natural gas from the lines in Greene County at least until next April 30.

Perrott had asked the state to refrain from barring the tapping of the federally-constructed mains under existing rights of way granted by the commonwealth because his company "is urgently in need of additional supplies of natural gas."

He said its industrial consumers have been cut 10,000,000 cubic feet a day in the Pittsburgh area "and in any event" further reductions will be necessary.

CARNEGIE TECH TO BUILD ATOM SMASHER

Pittsburgh, Dec. 18.—(P)—Carnegie Institute of Technology today announced plans to build a 200-million volt synchro-cyclotron, or "atom smasher" on its campus within the next two years.

Tech President Robert E. Doherty said the project was made possible by a grant of $300,000 from the Buhl Foundation of Pittsburgh. A condition of the grant provides that at least $250,000 shall be subscribed by others for the same purpose.

Mr. Doherty said the proposed Tech accelerator will embody magnet poles 110 inches in diameter and will be exceeded in size by the giant 124-inch cyclotron at the University of California.

U. S. Chamber Replies To C. I. O. Claim Industry Can Afford To Increase Wages

Washington, Dec. 18.—(P)—The United States Chamber of Commerce conceded today that "many prices are too high," but declared that a new round of wage increases will make reducing them "impossible."

The chamber gave industry's first full-dress reply to the CIO contention that industry can afford wage increases ranging up to 25 per cent without raising prices or substantially disturbing profit returns.

"Economic mirage" was the rebuttal of William E. Jackson, president of the chamber. He said any wage increases will be accompanied by "closely corresponding price increases."

Jackson submitted an analysis of the report made recently for the CIO by Robert R. Nathan, private economist and former deputy war mobilization director for the government. The analysis contended both Nathan and the CIO had used facts "carelessly."

Nathan said industry profits are at an all-time high, even exceeding war levels. The chamber maintained they are "below normal."

The CIO report contended workers' "real" earnings have declined from a 1945 peak. The chamber asserted that "by the autumn of this year the wage worker was still substantially ahead in real wages of his position before the war or before the depression of the 1920s."

The Canadian veteran, Donald Sherman Staley, 29, of Bracebridge, Ont., was convicted of the sex slaying on July 24 of six-year-old Donnie Goss in Calgary, Alta. Police said he also confessed killing 12-year-old Garry Billings in Vancouver, B. C., on July 5.

TRUMAN GOING TO INDEPENDENCE, MO.

Washington, Dec. 18.—(P)—Mrs. Harry S. Truman and her daughter, Margaret, will leave "within a day or so" for Independence, Mo., to spend the Christmas holidays.

The president's wife and daughter will travel by train, but White House Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters that he did not know the exact time of departure.

President Truman is expected to fly to Missouri subsequently to spend Christmas with them and his 94-year-old mother, Mrs. Martha E. Truman of Grandview.

Vote On Atomic Control Deferred

Lake Success, N. Y., Dec. 18.—(P)—The U. N. Atomic Energy Commission had deferred until Friday—at Russian insistence—its vote on the United States proposals for international control, for which U. S. delegate Bernard M. Baruch sought immediate approval yesterday.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko, suggesting that the American control proposal was not entirely in conformity with the U. N. General Assembly's disarmament resolution voted last week, won agreement for his request for more time to study the plan.

Most of the commission members already are on record as approving the American proposal, but Gromyko had Chinese and Polish support in his contention that a quick vote without painstaking study might pose a threat to unanimity among the great powers later.

Baruch, clearly disappointed at the delay, said: "Holidays—delays and delays; time goes by, then we go back and we do it again."

TWELVE CHILDREN REPORTED IN CRITICAL CONDITION IN NEWBERRY, S. C., HOSPITAL

Newberry, S. C., Dec. 18.—(P)—Ten pupils and the driver of a school bus were killed today when the bus and a southbound Southern Railway passenger train collided at a grade crossing on the outskirts of Silverstreet, a village seven miles southwest of Newberry. Twelve other school children were injured in the accident. They were brought to Newberry County Hospital for treatment. Attendants said all were in critical condition.

Mrs. H. N. Wallace of the McSwain funeral home, where five of the dead were brought, said ambulance drivers told her the train struck for half a mile down the tracks.

Some bodies were carried along on the cowcatcher of the engine, while others were scattered beside the track, according to her information.

Mrs. Wallace said the crash occurred on a straight stretch of road.

Richard Sanders, the driver, was killed.

Early arrivals at the scene found bodies, clothing, and school books strewn along the railroad tracks for half a mile. Three bodies were removed from the bus after the wreck. The bus engine was found 250 feet away from the crossing.

It was believed that the driver was not expecting the train, which was running about two hours late on its Greenville-Columbia schedule as he approached the crossing. The intersection tops a rise of some 15 to 20 feet in the highway, and trains coming from the right are obscured by an embankment. Foggy weather, with low-hanging clouds made visibility poor.

Two girls and a boy were thrown clear of the bus by the impact of the collision. It was not determined at once whether they suffered internal injuries. The girls, however, walked with conductor O. C. Crouch to a nearby residence from which a telephone call for ambulances was sent in.

Four children living two miles from the crossing missed the bus and thereby escaped being in the wreck. Because of the weather, they waited indoors, planning to flag the bus, but it passed before they could stop it.

Baruch Asks Wallace For Retraction

New York, Dec. 18.—(P)—Bernard M. Baruch declared today in a letter to Henry A. Wallace that the New Republic magazine, in which Wallace is the new editor, had made a "false" statement in its Dec. 16 issue by stating Baruch was participating in the government's legal battle against John L. Lewis.

In the letter, which Baruch made public today, he termed "wholly false and deliberately so" an article in the New Republic which Baruch's letter quoted as saying:

"Lewis and against his own compromise-minded advisers. He determined to take his stand and hold the line against Lewis if it took all winter. He delegated the leadership of the fight to the toughest man around him: General Counsel Clark Clifford, and the ubiquitous George Allen, both reinforced by conservative Bernard Baruch."

Baruch's letter asserted, "the truth easily could have been ascertained by asking me. I never communicated with the president on this subject. x x x I expect you to correct this error which, I should think, is an unfortunate way to begin a new job depending on public confidence."

Wallace's secretary said he had not received the letter yet and therefore could not comment.

Engineers Study Plans For Pittsburgh - Lake Erie Canal

Pittsburgh, Dec. 18.—(P)—Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, chief of army engineers, said last night that "one of the proposed improvements now under study by engineers is a through route for cargo vessels direct from Duluth and other lake ports to Pittsburgh."

Such a route, Wheeler told reporters, would result in "fantastic savings" in shipments of iron ore for Pittsburgh's steel mills.

Col. W. E. Lawrence, district engineer at Pittsburgh, said he hoped to have ready for the next session of Congress plans and recommendations for an 18-foot canalized project from Pittsburgh to Lake Erie at a point near Ashtabula, Ohio, by way of the Beaver and Mahoning rivers. He said the project also would serve the Youngstown district.

Lawrence said extension of the Allegheny river locks and dam from its present slack water head at East Brady to Oil City would carry navigation facilities through an industrial "twilight zone" into a diversified industrial area centered in northwestern Pennsylvania's oil fields.

He said a survey for improvement of the river between East Brady and Oil City already has been authorized, but that there was "no economic justification" at the present time for slack-watering the river above Oil City to Olean, N. Y., and building a canal from there to connect with the Erie canal in upper New York state.

A preliminary engineers' survey indicated nine dams would be required between East Brady and Oil City, but 36 to 38 dams would be necessary for slack-watering the Allegheny between Oil City and Olean, the district engineer

No Half Holiday For Mail Handlers Of Mail

Washington, Dec. 18.—(P) Mail carriers and other postal workers whose jobs are in the actual handling of mail will not get the Christmas eve half holiday ordered by President Truman for most federal employees.

An order from Postmaster General Hannegan points to the volume of mail being handled and says there can be no suspension.

However, departmental workers—those not in the field service and not dealing directly with Christmas packages and such—still are eligible for the free time.

Pari-Mutuel Betting Law Is Suggested

Harrisburg, Dec. 18.—(P)—The 1947 session of the Pennsylvania legislature may be asked again to legalize horse racing and pari-mutuel betting, a measure that has stirred heated debate in previous sessions.

The legislative reference bureau disclosed yesterday that Philadelphia legislators have asked it to draw up a measure presumably for consideration of the assembly which opens its session on January 7.

The bureau declined to disclose proponents of the proposed measure, which would tax a percentage of pari-mutuel betting. A similar bill before the 1945 session was sponsored by five Philadelphia representatives. The bill failed of passage, with organized church groups opposing it vigorously.

Rep. Hiram G. Andrews, Democratic floor leader, suggested recently that pari-mutuel betting is "one source of revenue" that has "not been touched but emphasized at the time he was not speaking for the minority party in the legislature."

Criminally Insane Lifers At Large

Phoenixville, Dec. 18.—(P)—Six criminally insane army life term prisoners who forced a window to escape from Valley Forge General Hospital cluded capture in eastern Pennsylvania today.

Police units hunting the fugitives called on civilians in race broadcasts to help by reporting immediately any trace of the men. They warned the six were dangerous and should be approached with caution.

But there was no trace of the fugitives or any clue as to the direction in which they fled. Police said the six, committed for crimes ranging from rape to murder, escaped through a window of their ward and possibly were aided in the quick getaway by an automobile.

The hospital said the men were not armed when they fled from their ward but that it was possible they obtained weapons later. A previous statewide police alarm had stated the men were armed.

Assistant of Late President Indicted

Baltimore, Dec. 18.—(P)—Eugene B. Casey, one of the late President Roosevelt's six executive assistants during the war, was under a federal grand jury indictment today charging he evaded income taxes in the amount of $70,334.

The indictment, handed down yesterday, charged that during the years 1941, 1942 and 1943, when Casey was in the White House, he had income for the three years was $171,826 and the income was $61,210.

He paid federal income and victory taxes of $18,755 when he should have paid $59,169.

Fictitious office rents and salaries and overstate maintenance charges were claimed in connection with his real estate business in Washington and Maryland.

Casey, 42, resigned the presidential post in 1944 to serve in the navy and saw combat service before returning to civilian life

Cold Wave To Hit Tonight In This Section

The cold wave that the weatherman promised last night that would send the mercury rattling down to almost zero evidently missed the boat. The mercury did slump down to the twenties but it was not of the bone shaking variety that had been anticipated.

However, nothing discouraged the weatherman is trying again and trots out with another cold wave which is due in Warren tonight. In fact the next couple of days are to be cold, according to the weather sharp.

In the midst yesterday temperatures dropped down to 18 below zero and this cold weather is expected to drift eastward and bring chills into this section. No heavy snows are anticipated but surges are promised over the northwestern part of the state. Near blizzards have assailed some of the Midwest with considerable snow and much ice.

Roads throughout this section are in good shape and most of them are clear. Ice is reported in some shady places along the highways but with careful driving and attention to speed and rules of the road accidents can be held to the minimum.

The state highway department crews are prepared to give the snow a battle when it does come and is in much better shape than last year. New trucks have been sent, a rotary snow plow is located in Erie county and it is expected to handle big drifts in the surrounding counties. Cinder piles are in place and with the equipment on hand the roads can be kept in good shape for winter driving.

Capital Social Register Has 3,000 Changes Within Year

By JANE EADS
 By the Associated Press
 Washington—The capital's own social register, costly couched between covers of bright green simulated suede paper, has been subjected to 3,000 changes within the past year.
 Because of people leaving town, deaths, marriages, divorces and unpleasant publicity, 700 names were taken out.
 The biggest changes, however, were wrought by the doffing of service ranks when the "brass" of the army and navy became again the "Call Me Mister" boys.
 Numerous other changes came about when young couples who had lived with their parents somehow found a nest of their own and thus a new address.
 More than 800 new names were put into the register, which is gotten out by Mrs. Carolyn Hagner Shaw, who literally knows Washington from A to Z.

In the list of new names are John R. Steelman, director of the office of war mobilization and reconstruction; Edwin W. Pauley, reparations commissioner, the new assistant secretary of the navy, John W. Kenny, and the new chief of naval operations, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, and their wives of course.
 Other additions to the list, resulting from presidential appointments and new diplomatic assignments, include Norris F. Dodd, under secretary of agriculture; William C. Foster, new under secretary of commerce; John Nichols Brown, assistant secretary of navy for air, and Willard L. Thorp, assistant secretary of state for economic affairs.
 Mrs. Shaw's book came out the latter part of September, so she is planning to get out a supplement of recent changes—mostly those in congress and the executive department caused by the recent elections.
 The book contains more than 4,500 names and weighs one-fourth of a pound more than last year's register. Though they have been turned down by the board of governors, who rule on whose name is to be included and whose excluded, some folks are still hankering to get into the register.
 There are more of the "just folks" type of person in the new directory than during the war years when a lot of the "rock" class swarmed into the capital from the big towns like New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and so on.
 The Rockefellers, Astors, Vanderbilts and other top-drawer names were found in the list, though most of the members of these families only spent brief intervals in the homes they leased here.
 The Alfred V. DuPonts, however, still keep their name in the list. They maintain a swank apartment on Connecticut Avenue, where they stay on intermittent visits to the capital. Their true residence nevertheless, is still in Delaware, at Greenville, near Wilmington.
 In addition to the list, a sort of "Emily Post" business in the back of the book gives the dos and don'ts of social behavior as it is practiced in the capital's best circles.
 Mrs. Shaw says she's amused at how many persons want to learn better manners. They call her up all hours of the day asking her how to dress or what to say at various functions.
 Mainly, she says, the questions are about what to wear. Formal entertainment has come back in a big way, with the White House setting the pace again.

HONOR WHERE IT'S DUE

The Times-Mirror, and it is hoped along with members of the Warren County Field and Stream Club and the hundreds of other Warren County folk who will enjoy the recreation park to be erected with an artificial lake in the Tionesta Valley, owe a debt to State Senator Chapman. Through his persistent efforts the approval of the Department of Forests and Waters was received for the appropriation of funds with which to start the building of the recreation area. The initial allocation of $150,000 will provide a fine start for this area which in time will be one of the finest out-of-door recreation centers in this end of the state. In fact, there will be few such places in the entire commonwealth if the plans proposed by Senator Chapman to the Secretary of the Department of Forests and Waters are carried out.

To that end it is felt that in view of the securing of the approval for this recreational area and artificial lake that it would be most fitting that the project should be given the name of Chapman Park.

It is felt that the Warren County Field and Stream Club and all others who took part in the campaign to secure this area realize that had it not been for the efforts of Senator Chapman and his influence at Harrisburg the project would not have been approved. It required many visits to the state capital, talks with Gov. Edward Martin and other state officials and the full influence of a State Senator to get the right answer.

Honor where honor is due would cause all to take action that would give to Senator Chapman the recognition that should be his for his efforts in behalf of the project and there could be no more splendid manner in which to show the gratification felt over approval for the project than to have it carried on the maps of the state as Chapman Park.

CHRISTMAS TREE FIRE HAZARDS

"Each year the question arises as to the fire hazard of Christmas trees and decorations," says a bulletin of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. "The inflammability of the trees used is well known, and considerable thought has been given to the question of rendering them less easily ignited. Various methods of treating trees with flame-proofing solutions have been tried, but none has proven successful.

"Because of the inability to make Christmas trees flame-proof, it is urged that other protective practices be adopted.

"Keep the tree outdoors until ready to install it. Do not set it up until a few days before Christmas. Place it in the coolest part of the house. If necessary, shut off the radiator close to it.

"Under no circumstances use any cotton or paper for decoration of the tree or around it.

"Do not place electric trains around the tree. Use only electric lights and see that all of the strings are in good condition and not frayed. Those which have been inspected by Underwriters' Laboratories have a paper band around the wire or a statement on the box.

"Do not leave the tree lights burning when no one is in the house. From time to time inspect the tree and see whether any of the needles near the lights have started to turn brown. If so, change the location of the lights. When the needles start falling, take the tree down and discard it.

"If it is desired to keep the tree up for a few days longer, then do not keep lights on for more than a half hour at a time.

"If any decorations are used about the house, do not permit them to be around or near chairs or other places where persons may smoke. It is preferable to have them up near the ceiling, well above the head of anyone standing up. If lights are desired in windows, never use candles; keep curtains and other flammable material pulled back at least six inches from any light.

"In hotels, churches, hospitals and other places of assembly, and in hallways of offices, the location of the Christmas tree is of vital importance. It should not be located near any stairway or elevator which would provide an upper draft. It should not be near entrance doors or otherwise blocking exits.

"It is very essential that all doors leading to other parts of the building, particularly upper stairs, if located closed to a Christmas tree, be normally kept closed.

"A definite inspection should be made each morning, by someone of authority to determine whether the tree should be left up for a longer time, and whether it should be lighted again. Remember, a small tree can be as beautiful as, but less hazardous than, a large one.

"Christmas trees in offices should not be located in such a position as to block exit from the office.

"In case of fire, leave the building. Walk, don't run. Call the fire department."

Those in charge of the Alias Santa Claus department of the Times-Mirror felt a little more encouraged today when there arrived in the mail a check for ten dollars from a subscriber in the south. It goes to show that even as far away as that, Alias Santa is considered a worthy fund.

Although the investigation is still being carried on, no new developments have been reported in the robbery which occurred at the Sugar Grove Savings Bank Dec. 11, when yeggs obtained approximately $240.

Distribution of toys repaired and painted by Warren firemen, which is sponsored this year by the Warren Kiwanis Club, will be planned at a meeting to be held tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Central Fire Station.

50th Anniversary Of Fred Sechriests

Yesterday proved a very happy occasion for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sechriest, 7 West street, who observed their golden wedding anniversary with a family party, also with open house for many, many relatives and friends.

Those present for the dinner included their three children, Mrs. J. Kaye, Mrs. Emil Schwalb and Mrs. Gustav Pedersen, with their grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Flowers and a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake were used in the table appointments.

The open house was held during the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Schwalb in Pleasant road, the three daughters receiving the guests and three granddaughters, Helen, Ardath and Hazel, serving. The wedding cake and golden bunnies entered the dining table.

Besides a shower of greetings, the honored guests received a great many gifts, including flowers and money.

Mr. Sechriest and Celestina G. A. were united in marriage on December 17, 1896, at the bride's home in Hatch Run, Rev. A. B. Markley, Lutheran minister, reading the ceremony. They have always lived in this community and have a wide circle of friends and acquaintances to wish them many more years of happiness.

Holiday Meeting Of Blue Stockings

Blue Stocking Club members met Tuesday afternoon, entertained by Mrs. Burr Walker, Conewango avenue, and Mrs. F. L. Plummer, the latter also conducting the business session.

Miss Ethel Morris, legislative chairman, read a letter from the General Federation of Women's Clubs concerning legislation of interest to the club current before the legislature. The letter also brought to the attention of the membership the name of Mrs. Gustave Kettering, of Philadelphia, as a candidate for recording secretary, the first time in Pennsylvania has had a candidate for office in 20 years.

Miss Mabel Abbott read beautifully a Christmas story, followed by a group of six carols sung by the Blue Stocking sextet. The group showed the careful training given by its leader and accompanist, Mrs. Robert Beatty, and was a welcome addition to the program.

To conclude, tea was served from a beautifully appointed table at which Mrs. H. H. Barr and Mrs. E. H. Beshlin presided.

The next club meeting will be the mid-year luncheon at the YWCA activities building on January 7.

New Year's Bells Theme For Party

The Warren Hi-Y and Y-Teens Club are getting plans under way for the forthcoming "Bell Ball", which is to take place Monday, December 30, at the YWCA activities building for teens and twenties.

Heading the committee for ticket sales is Connie McNulty, with Jim Nicholson, Bill Kuhre, Bill Erickson, Peggy Krebs, Mary Bonnell, Joan Langdon and Ann Lesser as her committee.

Mary Hall, who has headed many successful decorating committees, will be in charge of that phase of the preparations. New Year's bells will be the theme and it is expected the gym will be filled with bells and bells.

Seeing that posters are put in the most appropriate places is the task of JoAnn Phillips, who has long been a hard worker in this field. Bonnie Schwartz is heading a special committee, has duties not having been divulged as yet. When asked what his committee is planning, Bonnie replies: "Well, the kids to come and find out."

James Rock, publicity chairman for the Hi-Y, says: "How about it, fellows. Better get that date lined up."

DORCAS SOCIETY
The Dorcas Society of Grace Methodist church will have a turkey supper at 6:15 p. m. Thursday in the League room. Members are asked to bring a 50-cent gift for exchange and are reminded that the dessert will be provided.

What Causes Your Headache?

By MULLEN DRUG CO.
Headache is perhaps the most common ailment of mankind, therefore he regards it lightly and will take anything to relieve it without knowing its cause.

Often headache is caused by a minor, temporary disorder in the body which will pass quickly and naturally. But when pain persists, it should be taken as a warning of a more serious complication.

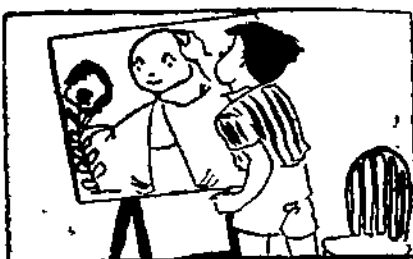

Consult a doctor who will diagnose the cause of your headache and will prescribe proper medication.

Then take your prescription to a trusted druggist who is qualified by education and experience to compound medicine.

A Sketch About Spelling

Times were reminiscent of grandpa's day at the Warren Business School on Tuesday afternoon, when the young people lined up for a good old-fashioned spelling bee. Grace Cartwright was captain of one side, while Donald Billingsly chose his mates for the other. Miss Cusins, principal of the school, who conducted the spelling class throughout the school term, asked Edward Marek, resident manager, to pronounce the words. Round after round of common business words were given to the students with very little show of spelling down. Later, however, more difficult words were pronounced—gazetteer, plagiarist, almanac, disseminate, calisthenics, simile, heifer, broccoli—these took their toll. It took "ensilage" to knock out Sherwood Fleming Youngsville; "specimen" to waylay Grace Cartwright, Kane; "hypothecate" to down Lloyd Miller, of Baxter; "dunning" to blast the hopes of Albert Sears, Akeley, etc. . . . until only three remained. These three—Mabel Peterson, Ludlow, Patricia Giltman, Jackson avenue extension, and Katherine Joan McGuckin, Russell—stood firm. Now entirely new words were given, words which had not been studied in school—alpaca, gossamer, challis, hie, Legerie, settee, bouillon—on they came. Miss Peterson finally succumbed to "bouillon", Miss Giltman to "jardiniere" and Miss McGuckin stood alone to take the prize—a box of candy. The students clapped merrily for Miss McGuckin and gladly proclaimed her the winner. All expressed a desire to have other spelling bees.

Irvine, Dec. 18—Mrs. Leigh Nulph entertained the Methodist WSOS at her home for its annual Christmas party. All members were present but Kathryn Hamblin. Mrs. Olson, the president, called the meeting to order by using Matthew's story of the nativity as the scripture lesson. Christmas carols were sung and Mrs. Wing gave "The True Story of Father Christmas." Mrs. Colburn gave "Christmas Eve, As Told By a Christmas Stocking." Mrs. Ruth Dolphin and Mrs. Nulph provided some special music. To conclude, the hostess served delicious refreshments and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

The program committee opened its part of the meeting with all singing "Silent Night"; a reading, "Is There a Santa Claus," Margaret Mahan; reading, Ann Meley, and a Christmas quiz conducted by Dorothy Firth. An exchange of gifts from the Christmas tree completed a pleasant afternoon.

Familiar carols, led by Miss Ira McKinney and accompanied by Mrs. Dorothy Engstrom, played a prominent part in the December meeting of Johnson PTA held last evening at the school building. Mrs. Edith Muir, with the aid of a flannelgraph, portrayed her conception and belief in "The Second Coming of Christ," and Mrs. Francis Hetrick pleased with two lovely Christmas poems.

The Christmas thought was apparent, too, in the devotions conducted by Mrs. Donald Patten in a very pleasant social hour for which fifth grade members were hostesses.

Deer Herd Is Not Badly Hurt By Heavy Kill This Season

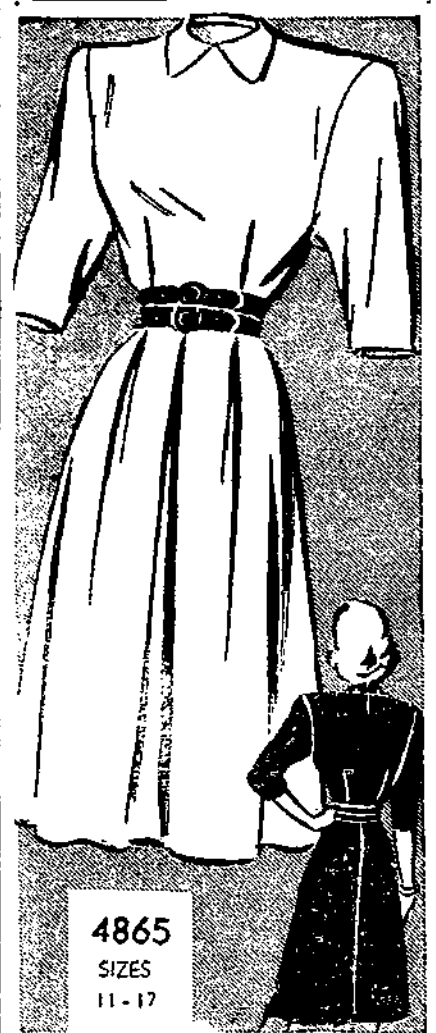

Forest rangers, pipe line walkers and others who get into the lands where the deer herd has its habit give it as their opinion that the deer herd was not perceptibly hurt by the heavy kill of bucks by hunters during the season just closed. While the kill was heavy and perhaps a record breaker the herds have not been greatly affected. Prediction is made that hunting next year will be as good if not better than it was this year. However there is some talk of an open season on doe next year. The number of doe sighted in the forest this year was great and in many instances there were three or four for every buck. With a proportionate increase in the number over a year the does will be using large quantities of the feed that is necessary to keep the herd alive.

An open season on does was enjoyed by hunters in several of the border state counties and the kill was heavy. Warren sportsmen had asked that all northern tier counties have an open doe season in 1946 but could not get several counties in the section to unite on the plan.

Many familiar with the deer situation in Warren, Elk, McKean, Forest and other counties feel that the does will be a problem by the time another hunting season rolls around and that an open season on them must come soon or the herd will be affected by the absence of sufficient feed.

Toys and Clothing for Kiddies In Warren County Is Needed

Alias Sanja fairly roared into the office this morning and drawing his big red bandana hankie out of the depths of his great coat snorted into it and said "I've got to have a lot of toys and I don't mean maybe. And I've got to have oodles of warm clothing. Do you know that I have just had reported to me a lot of kids out in the country need clothing? Yes sir, they have got to have a lot if they are to keep warm in these cold days. And if they are to have fun and a grand Christmas they must have toys. Now if I just tell the good folk of this community that all will be forthcoming. Boys and girls need the toys and clothes. Will you help?"

And with that off his chest Alias turned to the task of counting the money that came in this morning. "Now, that is fine," said the old boy as he picked up envelopes in which were crisp one dollar bills. "It's the one dollar folks who really give evidence of their generosity. I know that to a lot of folks one dollar is a lot of money and it really is when it comes from the heart." One envelope had two dollar bills in it; another had one and another had one; the Templeton Funeral Home had a check for five dollars and the Loyal Order of Moose sent a $25 check.

"The fund is growing in bully shape," said Alias "but lo you know that as the holiday nears more folks are reporting cases? The state, county and other nurses whisper to me that a lot of folks need things. And I would so love to get them what they need. But Warren folk are just going to be generous, I know, and there will not be any great difficulty."

Great Britain is planning the "world's largest shooting gallery"—a 3000-mile rocket range across barren western Australia and the Indian Ocean, as shown on map above. Object is rocket bomb research; developing "pay load" efficiency; and improved radio control. At first, rocket shots of only a few hundred miles will be made and gradually extended up to 3000 miles, with Christmas Island as target. The project has already approved the plan.

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Sure my name's "Fishbait," said W. Moseley Miller, assistant sergeant-at-arms of the House of Representatives, his candid gray eyes giving me a good once-over from behind his specs.

"When I was a tot of 15 down in Pascagoula, Miss., on the coast, I didn't weigh 75 pounds. Down there everybody fishes with shrimp, and I, being a shrimp, was called Fishbait."

"Up here when any and everybody calls me on the phone, I just say 'Fishbait speakin' and they know right off they got me on the other end of the wire."

Miller said he now weighs 200 pounds. He works, or rather has a desk, in the office of William M. Colmer, Democratic representative from his own Sixth District. He uses it, he says, as a place to "come in to from the cold."

He said his duty consists of staying on the floor of the House, where he is responsible for the conduct of members. He also takes care of the mace and appears at funerals of deceased members.

In addition, he has "the privilege and honor" of leading the Cabinet to the floor during joint sessions of Congress.

Miller said he knew he was going to lose his job when the Republicans take over Jan. 3.

"But," he said, "for your information, I'm trying to get a minority employee's job—on the floor—where I can go on being Mr. Available."

as old as the government itself having been provided for in a resolution adopted by the House during the first Congress in 1789.

Ever since, it has served as the active symbol of authority of the Sergeant at arms. It's Roman counterpart was used to behead citizens who got out of line.

It is always on hand when the House is in session. Miller used to bring it in from the Sergeant's office downstairs in the Capitol building about 15 minutes before meeting time.

The mace weighs 18 pounds, is 46 inches high and consists of a bundle of thirteen ebony rods, representing the 13 original states.

It is placed on a cylindrical pedestal of polished green marble at the right of the Speaker's desk. When the Speaker raps for order, it begins to play a silent but important part in the day's proceedings. When the House resolves itself into a committee of the whole the mace is removed to a lower pedestal.

THE mace is used by the Sergeant at arms to restore order when other means fail. It is hustled to the scene of hostilities when battling members fail to calm down.

Fishbait used it once during a debate on the FEPC last year. He saw tempers flaring between two members, stepped up the aisle with the mace and got between the two men, "ready to collar 'em both." They saw the mace and quieted down.

"I was really scared," Miller said.

Form Reports Must Be Filed On Vet Sales

Sellers of houses erected under the Veterans' Emergency Housing Program are required to file at the local OPA Area Rent Office, 707 Commerce Building, Erie, Pa., an original and copy of a sales report form each unit sold, Frank S. Anderson, Area Rent Director, said today.

Sales report forms are being sent to builders whose priority applications were approved before September 10, 1946, and have been given those granted priorities since then, Mr. Anderson said.

"If the builder has not yet completed a unit when he gets the forms, he should retain them until a sale is completed and then file them within 30 days of the sale," Mr. Anderson said. "The address of the Area Rent Office here, where the forms should be sent, is stamped in the upper right hand corner of the form."

"Builders who have any questions about completing the forms should get in touch with this office and we will be glad to assist them. The forms are not difficult to complete. It is vital, however, that they be made out correctly and filed promptly."

After the forms are filed here, they will be checked carefully to see if they conform with the original FHA approved priority application and any later FHA approved changes in it. The original will be retained at this office. The copy of the form will be forwarded to the Veterans who bought the house so that he can check to assure that statements on the form and the facts conform.

Mr. Anderson said that Veterans who have any questions about the date on the forms should contact their local Rent Office.

BROADWAY

By JACK O'BRIAN

NEW YORK—Philip Dorn, Holland's gift to Hollywood, temporarily on leave to Broadway, walked into his dentist's office the other day and noticed some fine portraits on the wall. He asked the molar yanker the name of the waiting room Rembrandt, and the doc admitted he'd painted them himself. Something of an amateur art expert, Phil got excited and busy on the project, the result being the first showing of portraits by Dr. Frederick Frank at the Norllyst Galleries.

Meyer Davis has a musical comedy script which combines a murder mystery and a romance involving real ghosts! . . . Edward Everett Horton played the theater at Great Neck, usually a warm weather resort, and commented, "I'm the only star who ever thought of playing summer theaters in the winter."

Moss Hart and the star of his movie version of "Lady in the Dark," Ginger Rogers, were in a homey little huddle at the Carnival, naturally starting off a set of rumors that Ginger'll be in Moss' next Broadway musical. . . . Moss' new play, the $180,000 "Christopher Blake," received a blistering going-over from most of the critics.

REX HARRISON told Producer Nelson Gross that he'll do a play in London next year rather than continue only in the movies. Rex also would like to come to Broadway if he could locate the correct script, a complaint most stars voice constantly. . . . Ralph Bellamy, whose theater is only a couple of steps away from the one where Katherine Dunham's "Bal Negre" is delighting dance fans, feeds carrots to the donkey used in the dance revue every night before he goes to make up for his role in "State of the Union."

Louis Prima would love being a jockey and in fact owns a string of racing nags. . . . Katherine Dunham studied to become a professor of anthropology. . . . Walter Winchell wanted to become a dancing star. . . . Danny Kaye would give his appendix to be a surgeon.

Dana Andrews is skiing in Vermont. . . . John Payne, Maureen O'Hara and Elinor Gwynn are in town to shoot scenes for "The Big Heart," 20th Century-Fox's film using a Manhattan background. . . . Ezra Stone may go to Hollywood on a writing-directing-producing deal. . . . Pandleader Sonny Dunham is trying to buy a surplus DC-4 from the War Assets Administration for moving his orchestra about the country.

The Dragons started off with a man-for-man defense but Jamestown was not to be stopped, and they scorched the nets to gain a commanding 23-10 lead at half-time. Warren shifted into a zone defense at the beginning of the second half and closed the gap rapidly, the score at one time in the third quarter being 25-20, Jamestown's favor. Late in the

FRANKLIN TEACHERS GRANTED WAGE HIKE

Franklin, Dec. 18.—(P) — The Franklin school board last night granted its 71 teachers a pay increase of $100 for the rest of the school term.

This was in response to a request from the teachers for more pay to meet higher living costs. The teachers were to meet with the board late today to discuss the raise.

A spokesman for the board said an effort would be made to pay the salary raises by affecting cuts in other areas rather than by running a deficit or by borrowing money. He said it was impossible to borrow money for emergency purposes without first obtaining a court ruling.

Ceramic tile, generally thought of in connection with the modern home, has been used in home building over 6,500 years.

Chapter 15

CORRINE was only half awake at seven o'clock the next morning and she had to think for a moment when she saw the dark-haired girl lying beside her.

Essie May came in rolling her eyes cautiously, the morning paper in her hand. "You sho' wakes up early dese mornin's, Miss Corry! You al' night laid 'till now."

"Sh-h-h!" Corrine warned with her finger against her lips, but the girl was no de-awake now, sitting up and rubbing the sleep from her brown eyes.

Corrine took the paper and propped herself up on the pillow. But before she opened it, she remembered that there were more urgent matters to be attended to. The three girls she and brought home would have to find clothes. All of them were as good as large as Corrine herself, and her bedmate nearly the same size.

"Essie May, you go through the clothes hung back in the closet and get some dresses for the girls. And there are underthings in the drawer. I think they all had on shoes, but they may need stockings."

"The dress I had on will do," protested the girl. "But Corrine reminded her that it was a school dress and would have to be washed before she could wear it again."

"Get all the clothes they wore into the laundry right away and we may have to buy something for Mrs. Hardy. She's too stout for Mother's clothes."

"Yessum, I see about it," the mulatto girl promised and went to the closet.

PENELOPE was busy in the kitchen making rice grays for breakfast. She called to David, "Get up and get washed for breakfast."

He said, "All right," sleepily, and tried to find a place on the short couch in the living room. He felt the intended "tumble" and going back to sleep, but there was no room, and now that he was half awake the couch was too uncomfortable.

His guests, David learned, were Mr. and Mrs. Rodney and their son, Roy. Mr. Rodney was a foreman at the Blount mills, and while they did not live in one of the tenement shacks, their house, south of the village, had gone with the other cottages.

Then, into Penelope's amazed ears, David revealed his secret ownership of the land across the gulch, to the strangers of his ambition to start building houses at once and his hope for the bridge.

"Why, there ought to be some way," Mr. Rodney said, and was as enthusiastic as David. "When you come to think of it, it's a damn shame not to have houses when we've got everything in arm's reach to build them with. Blount and Sykes ought to be able to help you put it through, and maybe some of the men have enough laid by to buy lots and put through a government loan. They've got steady jobs and will be good risk."

"There's a mass meeting at the Auditorium at eleven, David. I think you ought to go, by all means. They may need you," his mother said.

It was after he left the court-house and walked down to the business district that he met Corrine and Mary Hardy.

"What's been snoring?" Corrine said. "You've stopped to speak to them. You introduced Mary and said they had bought Mary's mother a new dress. 'Have you heard what we're going to do to raise money to tide the people over on last evening?'"

"I'm just sitting around town," David said. "Tell me the news."

"Well, Gilbert and Nella got together this morning and Gilbert has a grand plan that a friend of his in New York wrote and sent him to try out in our dramatic club. We're having a meeting at ten o'clock to discuss the play and assign parts. Nella thinks we can act at least two performances. She's going to try to get a crowd on Cottonwood over for the second night. Isn't it exciting?" Her mother said.

They're certainly napping right onto the job. Anything I can do to help out, like shifting scenery or water box or prop man—anything like that? He was laughing gaily when he finished.

Chapter 16

DAVID held out against Nella and the theatrical club for ten days, and after the first shock had passed, he was inclined to look upon the whole thing as a joke. Nella stormed him on the job, at home, and over the telephone, to no avail.

But he was a busy man those days, and the only thing he had to be thankful for was the fact that he had made blueprints of the entire Frogtown area for Mr. Crockett early in the summer. With these before him he moved in with a crew and the timber cutters and surveyed, staked out blocks and lots, superintended the clearing of what would some day be paved streets.

Too, there were political rallies two or three nights a week which he must attend and make extemporaneous speeches.

From the first political meeting that was held, he saw that he was to carry the burden of getting Mr. Crockett elected too, and felt there would be no chance in the end, for the man always reeked with whiskey and his tongue was thick when he tried to speak. He could not have spoken had he been sober.

There was another man a Mr. Snodgrass, who came to the race, a thin, snuffed-up little man, and it was whispered around that he had been run in at the last minute to split the vote. When he came on to speak after Crockett swayed from the platform, Nella said to David, "Come on up to my office, I want to talk to you."

David was suspicious. She hadn't mentioned the play for two whole days and nights, and he had an idea there would be a fresh attack, but he went with her.

"See here, David," she said when she was seated in the breakfasting chair before her desk, "this play is scheduled for the tenth of October and that's exactly fourteen days off. Everybody else has learned their parts, and you're the only one who hasn't. I have the assurance of both Mr. Blount and Mr. Sykes that a building program will be carried out as speedily as humanly possible."

"We're meeting at the Auditorium in an anteroom of the stage before the mass meeting starts. Why don't you come, David?"

"Well, maybe I'll do that," he said. "I've got to see a man."

His self-confidence was up a few more notches after the interview with Blount. Mr. Blount had snatched at his offer and the whole idea of the building program as a drowning man snatches at a floating straw.

His head was floating with all the things he had to get started. See Crockett... see Sykes... and it was important that he see Paul Granger, too. No telling what influence a friendship between them might do towards getting the bridge. And he liked Paul a lot. Besides Paul might pull some influence with his father to get half the money from the railroad company for the bridge.

A crowd milled around the Auditorium and inside when he arrived at five minutes to eleven, but he remembered the meeting in the anteroom, and sauntered in, more to see what Nella had lined up for the mass meeting than any interest he had in the theatrical group.

They were in a huddle around a manuscript lying on a table. They all looked up when he came in and there was an expression on every face that merited the finding of a gold mine.

"Here he is," Corrine exclaimed, and her eyes fairly danced.

"I'll say he is," Nella declared. "We have a play here far over on the side. Ross Hordley was addressing the great audience that had gathered for the meeting."

"Owing to the lack of housing facilities," he said. "There seems to be no room for any more people here. I have the assurance of both Mr. Blount and Mr. Sykes that a building program will be carried out as speedily as humanly possible."

"Good Lord, Nella, haven't I told you I can't act? I'd make the biggest mess of the thing you ever heard of. I'd ruin your play. I'm not cut out for that sort of thing."

Nella was plainly exasperated, but she grinned up at him. "You won't have to act. All you'll have to do is let your natural self speak the lines. You are the part, see?"

"Let me see that danged play."

DAVID read half of the first act, his face darkening with every page he turned. "Do you mean to say I'm that sort of guy?" He flung the script down and glared at her.

"Only at first. Read on. You're a changed man before it's over, see? You fall in love." The dimple came now and she laughed aloud.

"With whom?"

"The heroine, of course. Corrine plays the part of Mary Ellen. If you noticed, she's pretty horrid at the first act too. But you fall in love. Ah!" She sat back and breathed a mock, ecstatic sigh. "There's where both of you change."

David's eyes narrowed suspiciously, but her bland face told him nothing. "What a setup," he growled. "What about Gilbert? Why didn't he take this leading role? He always does."

"Oh, we needed him for the young Englishman. He's your rival for Corrine's Mary Ellen's hand. He is Lord Dunsbury, and Madelyn plays the part of Hortense."

David claved at his hair and stood up. "I can't do it, Nella. I wouldn't even have time to learn the first scene. I'd jam it up. I've got so many things on my mind I'm going around in circles."

"You'll regret it," she snapped. "The entire community is counting on this play. I've sold tickets all up the line, in Cottonwood and Berkeley and Sandus, for the second night. Enough to fill the house."

David did not answer, but strode from the office, his hat pulled lower over his right eye.

It was early the next morning, just as he was ready to go to work, when Corrine came. He opened the door and glanced at

New Method Of Childbirth Is Introduced

According to a release from the Metropolitan Hospital, Philadelphia, a Clarendon osteopathic physician has just completed an intensive course of study of a new and safe method of planned painless labor and childbirth. Dr. William L. Mines, 34, Philadelphia, osteopathic physician who recently attracted nation-wide attention by developing this procedure after years of research.

He is Dr. A. C. Myers, member of the staff of the Allegheny Osteopathic Hospital at Warren, and the course of study was conducted at the Osteopathic Hospital of Philadelphia, where the new method is being used with remarkable success.

Under the planned painless labor and childbirth procedure the patient is free, not only of the pains of labor and delivery, but shows none of the debilitating effects of ordinary labor and childbirth. Both physical and psychological support is offered to these patients during their period of labor by means of nourishing food and entertainment, supplied by reading matter and radio programs. They are permitted to be ambulatory the same day.

Dr. Myers will apply the knowledge gained under Dr. Mines to his professional practice.

P. T. A. News

(From Page Seven) This Christmas message to this she added her own echo of appreciation to the teachers. Reports of the newly-formed discussion groups were given and Mrs. Willis Looming spoke of the recent Community Council meeting, when action was taken to sponsor the return of public kindergartens to the school system, for attendance at the district meeting at Oil City, for promoting the remaining Clara Tree Major play of the season and for a joint meeting with the County Council in February. Members voted to secure a special Christmas movie to be shown to the pupils on Friday morning of this week and Mrs. Mrs. Duesing, 3140-R, volunteered to take names of husbands interested in helping with the proposed flooding of Beatty court for ice skating.

Upside Down Gingerbread With Pineapple

Pineapple slices 1 cup four cups brown sugar 1 cup molasses 1 cup melted butter 1 cup shortening 1 teaspoon soda 1 egg well beaten

Cover bottom of baking dish with sliced pineapple and sprinkle with brown sugar. Mix sugar, molasses and melted shortening. Add soda and well beaten eggs. Mix flour with salt, cinnamon and ginger and add to first mixture. Then add cooking water. Mix quickly and pour over pineapple slices and bake for thirty minutes at 400 degrees. Turn out upside down and serve with whipped cream.

If food should burn in a pan, don't scrape it off with a metal instrument. Fill the pan with water to which a little vinegar has been added, and boil for a few minutes. It will then clean easily in warm soapy water.

Half a large turkey yields considerably more cooked turkey than a whole small turkey of the same weight.

Stuffed peppers are one of those adaptable dishes that ingenious cooks can adapt to meat and to vegetable. They can play the part of a vegetable dish or a meat dish, depending on the ingredients rounded into the stuffing. Their best use is to make a tasty meal out of a small amount of meat.

Scientists believe that 100 million years ago the Atlantic had a climate favoring vegetation such as the United States has now.
